Remote Learning Guidance for Being a Writer

INTRODUCTION

GUIDANCE

  Beginning of the Year
  Middle of the Year
  End of the Year

SAMPLE SCHEDULES
The school closures and emergency remote learning during the 2019–2020 school year have changed the landscape of instruction. Center for the Collaborative Classroom recognizes that going forward, educators will need more flexible options to support their students’ learning in a variety of circumstances and formats.

The guidance that follows was designed to focus instruction on pedagogy rather than the technology used to deliver the instruction. We want to help ensure that the integrity of the lessons in Collaborative Literacy or any of our programs is maintained, while making necessary adjustments for distance learning. Additionally, we want to make sure the work students do is rigorous and cognitively engaging, leading to independence rather than simply completion and compliance.

The Remote Learning Guidance is designed to support teachers in transitioning Collaborative Literacy or any of the individual programs from an in-person format to either a blended or fully remote setting.

The guidance is organized by grade level. Within each of the grade levels, you will find instructional guidance, essential learning, and at-home activities. The icon indicates additional resources that are available on the Learning Portal. Sample schedules are provided to support your planning. For hybrid models, certain activities are better suited to in-person or remote learning and the sample schedules illustrate those recommendations.

Copyright Guidance

In order to facilitate remote learning when in-person instruction is not possible, you may share Collaborative Classroom program materials as needed via private or closed digital and audio environments. This includes the ability to:

- Access digital versions of certain trade books for the duration of the remote learning period. We have secured permission from the copyright holders to provide these versions to our school partners. Please note that the digital editions are not to be printed, downloaded, or shared beyond the classroom community.
Copy and share student materials as needed for learning, and share teacher materials in order to collaborate on lessons. Please make a reasonable effort to maintain existing copyright lines and reference owners of copyright (for example, if copying pages, include the copyright lines).

A Note About Read-Alouds

Unfortunately, in most cases Collaborative Classroom is not the copyright holder for the books and does not have the right to grant permission to record read-alouds. When recording read-alouds of any sort, please follow these additional guidelines to protect copyright holders:

- Many publishers have relaxed their copyright requirements during the covid-19 pandemic. Before recording a read-aloud or sending a request to the copyright holder, check the copyright holder’s website for information. Typically, information about recording read-alouds can be found under the Subsidiary Rights/Permissions or Contact Us sections of publisher websites.
- If you are unable to find any information on their website about whether a copyright holder is allowing recording of read-alouds during the covid-19 pandemic, then send the copyright holder a request for permission to record their book(s) in order to temporarily facilitate remote learning. Include your school name and book information.
- When recording and sharing a story do so privately or in a closed system (e.g., YouTube channel set to private).
- Include the book title, author, and publisher at the beginning of your reading.

Navigating a Virtual Platform

Students need the opportunity to learn the tools of their virtual platform. Build in time daily to teach and review how students turn their cameras on/off, mute/unmute, open and use the chat box, click to join a breakout room, and share their screen (older students). Ask yourself these questions:

- How will you incorporate learning to navigate the virtual platform into your online sessions?
- What are the aspects of your virtual platform that are essential for students to know how to manipulate?
- How can you remind yourself to be patient about teaching this navigation?

As you consider the aspects of your virtual platform that are essential, think about:

- The age of the students
- The content
- The time available
• How you can make best use of platform features:
  − A chat box is an excellent way to have quick conversations, provide short responses, and share thinking.
  − A breakout room is an excellent way to have deeper conversations, partner talk, and group work.
  − Sharing a screen is an excellent way for older students to show their work (writing samples) or share information.

Involve Parents/Families

Developing At-Home Norms/Expectations: Ask families to establish at-home norms or expectations for the school day. Encourage families to discuss norms for working at home. Possible discussion questions include:

  - What kind of routine will we establish to make sure we can all get our work done?
  - When will we take breaks to play and have fun?
  - When is it okay to interrupt adults while they are working?
  - How will children communicate that they need help?

Supporting Younger Students: There is a lot for our younger students to learn in this transition to online learning. Consider how you might involve parents/families in effectively engaging in the platform.

  - Who will help the student sign on?
  - Who will help the student get oriented to their screen as you teach them about the camera, the microphone, and the other features of the virtual platform?

Establish the “Ways We Work Together”

Provide the opportunity for the students to reflect on and discuss how to work as a community during online learning. Talk to the students about the ways you will work together on your virtual platform. Consider creating a “Ways We Work Together” chart. Possible discussion questions include:

  - What can we do to make sure we get to sessions on time?
  - What can we do to ensure we have all the materials needed?
  - What can we do to show we are listening?
  - What can we do to make sure everyone gets a chance to talk?
  - What can we do to make sure several of us don’t talk at the same time?
Over time, you might consider asking students to reflect on questions such as:

- Which work habit was easy for you today?
- Which work habit was challenging for you today? Why?
- What do you like about working together virtually?
- What can be hard about working together virtually?

Norm Setting

Consider engaging students in a more formal norm setting experience.

1. Ask the students to imagine what kind of virtual classroom they want to have. Ask them to close their eyes and visualize (make a picture in their minds) as you read the following scenario aloud slowly. Read the scenario twice.

   Imagine logging in and joining our virtual classroom. You feel nervous because you’ve never used [the platform] before. You are a bit shy and worried about being on camera. You may be feeling a little overwhelmed or confused about having to be out of school for so long, and a little sad because you are not able to be with your friends and your teacher. And you’re just feeling a little uncertain, but also maybe a little excited, about this new online structure for learning.

2. Ask the students to consider:

   - When you come to our online classroom, how do you want to be treated by the other class members?
   - How would you feel if other class members treated you this way?
   - Imagine if another member in our group felt this way—how would we want to treat them?

3. Ask the students to open their eyes and write their ideas (if grade appropriate). After a few minutes, ask the students to share their thinking.

4. With this discussion in mind, let the students know that you will create a “Ways We Will Work Together” chart based on the class discussion. Model for the students how to generate ways to work together statements. For example,

   I will.... I will not....

   Example: I will talk with a kind voice to other people.

   Example: I will not talk over other people.

5. Ask the students to share their “Ways We Will Work Together” statements. Based on what the students share, create a list of about five norms of “We will . . .” statements.

6. Revisit norms periodically across sessions.
“Go Bag” Guidance

The following suggestions will help you grab the necessary resources for teaching and learning when at-home remote learning is necessary.

For Teachers

While all of the teacher-facing resources are available on the Learning Portal, we recommend that you take your print Teacher’s Manuals home.

There is no digital access to the mentor texts in Being a Writer. It is essential that you bring those mentor texts with you for remote teaching.

For Students

We recommend:

- A fully charged device
- A writing tool—preferably a marker or a crayon as those are more visible when holding up documents to the camera
- Paper
- Journal
- Student Books:
  - Student Skill Practice Book (grades 1–6)
  - Student Writing Handbook (grades 2–6)
- White board and dry erase marker (grades K–2)

For Parents/Caregivers

We recommend providing the document “IDR Support for Parents” (English and Spanish versions are available) to parents and caregivers.
Supporting Students with Disabilities

Ensure learning opportunities for all students. Review the “Special Considerations” section of the Introduction in your program’s Teacher’s Manuals and consider how the additional strategies, question simplification guidance, and modifications might support students with disabilities. Additionally, consider how to use the digital supports offered in your virtual platform such as the speech-to-text feature.

Formative Assessment Considerations

Collecting data will help you plan for and make strategic decisions about how to best meet the needs of your students. Consider how you might use the program-specific assessments to gather information about your class, groups, and individual students.

- How might you administer the assessments via your virtual platform if you are in a fully remote learning situation?
- How might you might administer the assessments during in-person instruction if you are in a blended learning situation?

For Being a Writer instruction, we recommend prioritizing writing conferences with students, including:

- Beginning-of-Year Writing Sample: Use the instructions in Unit 1 of the Assessment Resource Book or ClassView Pro to obtain and analyze a beginning-of-year writing sample. The information gathered from the writing samples will help to determine students’ current writing skills and implications for reading and writing instruction.

- Student Writing Goals and Interest Survey: Use the “Conference Notes” record sheet from Unit 2 for grades K–1 and Unit 1 for grades 2–6 to conduct writing conferences and gather data on students’ ideas and feelings about writing (see the Assessment Resource Book or ClassView Pro). In grades K–1, conduct these conferences with the students during the first several weeks of the school year rather than waiting until Unit 2.

Consider how you will schedule one-on-one conferences with students in a fully remote learning situation.
Remote Learning Schedule Considerations

Think about the following allocations of time when planning for remote learning (inclusive of all subject areas):

- Kindergarten and Grade 1
  - Maximum of three 30-minute live/recorded sessions per day
  - Maximum of five 10- to 15-minute independent work activities to be done at family discretion over the course of the Week (for example, Letter Name activities, word work, independent reading/writing, poetry notebooks)

- Grades 2 and 3
  - Maximum of four 30-minute live/recorded sessions per day
  - Maximum of two 15- to 20-minute sustained work activities (for example, independent reading/writing) daily
  - Maximum of four independent work activities to be done at family discretion (for example, word work, vocabulary extensions, independent research)

- Grades 4–6
  - Maximum of three 30- to 45-minute live/recorded sessions per day
  - Maximum of two 20- to 30-minute sustained work activities per day (for example, independent reading/writing)
  - Maximum of five independent work activities to be done at any time during the day (for example, word work, vocabulary extensions, independent research)

Professional Learning Resources

Collaborative Classroom is dedicated to providing on-going professional learning resources to support teachers in their work planning and teaching Collaborative Literacy. Our teaching community has been a wealth of information and idea sharing during the time of remote learning. The following resources might be of further help to you:

- Join our Collaborative Classroom Community Facebook® page
- Follow us on Twitter
- Access our blogs and use the filters to find blogs of interest
- Access our archived webinars, review the various webinar series, and determine which might support your own learning
Being a Writer

Beginning of the Year

In this section, we offer guidance for the beginning of the school year (within the first 10–12 weeks). Being a Writer instructional guidance and at-home activities are provided to support fully or blended remote learning. The guidance is organized by grade level.

- Kindergarten
- Grade 1
- Grade 2
- Grades 3–6

Kindergarten

Instructional Guidance

There are three Being a Writer lessons per week in Kindergarten, with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 1: The Writing Community (4 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Establishing the writing community
  - Learning routines and procedures for writing time

- Considerations:
  - The routines and procedures described in the unit will need to be modified for a remote setting. Consider teaching the routines and procedures for your platform during this unit.
− Supporting Kindergarten writers is essential for their development in risk-taking and in learning initial letter-sound correspondences.
− This unit should be taught as intended for the full four weeks.

Unit 2: Getting Ideas (10 weeks)

- Essential content:
  − Exploring words
  − Exploring letter-sound relationships
  − Practicing writing letters and words
  − Approximating spelling
  − Generating ideas for writing/drawing
  − Learning to use the word wall
  − Drawing and writing freely

- Considerations:
  − Modifications may need to be made for using a word wall
    • For blended models, consider a portable word wall for students to have at home
    • For fully remote models, consider a digital word wall for students to access
    • Consider establishing a weekly time to confer with writers individually. This opportunity for formative assessment and feedback could be facilitated through a remote platform or as a phone call. Consider using the Extension on p. 135 to support your conversation.

At-Home Activities

- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extension Activities to further the learning:
  − Unit 1: p. 41, p. 44, p. 57
- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  − Unit 2: p. 159, p. 185
Grade 1

Instructional Guidance

There are four lessons per week in Being a Writer grade 1, with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 1: The Writing Community (5 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Establishing the writing community
  - Learning routines and procedures for writing time
- Considerations:
  - The routines and procedures described in the unit will need to be modified for a remote setting. Consider teaching the routines and procedures for your virtual platform during this unit.
  - Supporting first-grade writers is essential for their development in risk-taking and in learning initial letter-sound correspondences.
  - This unit should be taught as intended for the full five weeks.
  - Consider establishing a weekly time to confer with writers individually. This opportunity for formative assessment and feedback could be facilitated through a remote platform or as a phone call.

Unit 2: Getting Ideas (6 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Writing using a sentence frame
  - Contributing to a shared story
  - Approximating spelling using letter-sound relationships
  - Adding details to a story
  - Adding labels to illustrations
  - Exploring speech bubbles
- Considerations:
  - Modifications may need to be made for using a word wall
    - For blended models, consider a portable word wall for students to have at home
    - For fully remote models, consider a digital word wall for students to access
  - As you are conferring with students, consider using the Extension on p. 124 to support your conversations.
At-Home Activities

- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extension Activities to further the learning:
  - Unit 1: p. 19, p. 36, p. 67
  - Unit 2: p. 121, p. 122, p. 158, p. 169, p. 175, p. 190, p. 197
- Consider using the Writing About Reading activities:
  - Unit 1: p. 29, p. 62
  - Unit 2: p. 136, p. 186
Grade 2

Instructional Guidance

There are four lessons per week in Being a Writer grade 2, with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 1: The Writing Community (7 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Establishing the writing community
  - Learning routines and procedures for writing time
  - Approximating spelling using letter-sound relationships
  - Rereading and adding details
  - Using the word wall
  - Capitalizing and punctuating sentences

- Considerations:
  - The routines and procedures described in the unit will need to be modified for a remote setting. Consider teaching the routines and procedures for your platform during this unit.
  - This unit should be taught as intended for the full seven weeks.
  - Modifications may need to be made for using a word wall
    - For blended models, consider a portable word wall for students to have at home
    - For fully remote models, consider a digital word wall for students to access
  - Consider establishing a weekly time to confer with writers individually. This opportunity for formative assessment and feedback could be facilitated through a remote platform or as a phone call.

Unit 2: Telling More (4 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Visualizing to get ideas
  - Rereading and adding details to tell more
  - Checking sentence punctuation, including adding commas in a series
Considerations:
- This unit could be modified for time by omitting week 3.
- Pair conferring can be facilitated as an in-person lesson in a blended format or through the use of “breakout” rooms on your remote platform in a fully remote format.
- As you are conferring with students, consider using the Extension on p. 85 to guide your conversation.

At-Home Activities
- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extension Activities to further the learning:
  - Unit 1: p. 13, p. 21, p. 32, p. 53, p. 90, p. 105
  - Unit 2: p. 143, p. 158, p. 180, p. 185
- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  - Unit 1: p. 46, p. 63
  - Unit 2: p. 155, p. 181, p. 192
Grades 3–6

Instructional Considerations

There are five lessons per week in Being a Writer grades 3–6. The immersion and drafting weeks of the units lend themselves well to live instruction via a remote platform or as a recorded lesson. The revision, proofreading, and publication sections of the unit are best taught in a live format (in person or via remote platform). Independent writing is a daily part of the lesson and can be done at any time. You may consider recording the “Getting Ready to Write” section of each lesson, allowing students independent writing time via a shared platform (such as Google Docs) for interaction with each other, and establishing time for sharing and reflecting via a live platform.

When a blended or fully remote format is necessary, consider teaching the units in the following order:

- Unit 1: The Writing Community (beginning of the year)
- Unit 2: The Writing Process (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative Writing Performance Task (beginning of the year)
- Opinion Writing (middle of the year)
- Opinion Narrative Writing Performance Task (middle of the year)
- Functional Writing (middle of the year)
- Expository Nonfiction (middle/end of the year)
- Expository Narrative Writing Performance Task (end of the year)
- Poetry (if time allows)
- Fiction (if time allows)
- Unit 9: Revisiting the Writing Community

Unit 1: The Writing Community (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Establishing the writing community
  - Learning routines and procedures for writing time

- Considerations:
  - The routines and procedures described in the unit will need to be modified for a remote setting. Consider teaching the routines and procedures for your platform during this unit.
- If you do not have time to teach every lesson, you might skip the “Learning About an Author” lessons in weeks 1 and 2.
- Consider establishing a weekly time to confer with writers individually. This opportunity for formative assessment and feedback could be facilitated through a remote platform or as a phone call.
- Pair conferring can be facilitated as an in-person lesson in a blended format or through the use of “breakout” rooms on your remote platform in a fully remote format.

Unit 2: The Writing Process (2 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Understanding and learning the writing process
  - Taking a piece through publication

- Considerations:
  - This unit should be completed in its entirety.
  - Pair conferring can be facilitated as an in-person lesson in a blended format or through the use of “breakout” rooms on your remote platform in a fully remote format.

Personal Narrative (4 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Hearing and discussing personal narratives
  - Drafting personal narratives that focus on events and topics from students’ own lives
  - Learning conventions: sensory details, temporal words and phrases, strong openings and conclusions, commonly misused words, spelling, and punctuation

- Considerations:
  - The immersion and drafting weeks (1 and 2) could be modified to include fewer Quick-Write experiences if necessary.
  - The revision, proofreading, and publication weeks of the unit can be recorded and individual conferences can support students in taking their writing to final publication.

Personal Narrative Writing Performance Task (1 week)

- Essential content:
  - Applying learning from the Personal Narrative Unit to a writing performance task that integrates reading and writing
Consideration:

- This unit lends itself to recorded lessons. For fully remote formats, consider recording the lessons for the students and continuing individual conferences throughout the week of instruction. For blended models, consider Days 1, 2, and 4 for in-person learning and Days 3 and 5 for recorded lessons.

At-Home Activities

- Consider using the Writing Time portion of the daily lesson.

- Consider using the Extension Activities for independent work:

  Grade 3
  - Unit 1: p. 21, p. 28, p. 56, p. 67

  Grade 4
  - Unit 1: p. 23, p. 42, p. 65
  - Unit 2: p. 76, p. 87, p. 90, p. 102, p. 106, p. 110, p. 114

  Grade 5
  - Unit 1: p. 40, p. 64
  - Unit 2: p. 76, p. 87, p. 90, p. 102, p. 106, p. 110, p. 114

  Grade 6
  - Unit 1: p. 45, p. 49, p. 65, p. 81, p. 91, p. 92, p. 96

- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities for independent work:

  Grade 3
  - Unit 1: p. 32, p. 40, p. 64
  - Personal Narrative: p. 146, p. 156
Grade 4
- Unit 1: p. 14, p. 38
- Personal Narrative: p. 134, p. 179

Grade 5
- Unit 1: p. 33
- Personal Narrative: p. 135, p. 180

Grade 6
- Unit 1: p. 59, p. 97
- Personal Narrative: p. 204, p. 210
Middle of the Year

In this section, we offer guidance for the middle of the school year (approximately weeks 11–20). For the middle of the year, Being a Writer instructional guidance and at-home activities are provided to support a fully or blended remote learning. The guidance is organized by grade level.

- Kindergarten
- Grade 1
- Grade 2
- Grades 3–6

---

Kindergarten

Instructional Guidance

There are three Being a Writer lessons per week in Kindergarten with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 3: Telling More (4 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Learn prompts to support the writing community in telling more
  - Rereading and adding to stories
  - Visualizing and writing about topics of choice
  - Approximating spelling and using the word wall

- Considerations:
  - This unit is Kindergarten students’ introduction to revision.
  - This unit should be taught as intended for the full four weeks.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.

Unit 4: Just the Facts (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Generating and writing facts about a topic
  - Label drawings
  - Writing and punctuating sentences
- Expressing interest in one another’s writing

- Considerations:
  - In the second week of this unit, students will need to interview classmates. For a fully remote model, consider modifications as necessary.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.

At-Home Activities

- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extensions to further the learning:
  - Unit 3: p. 202, p. 216, p. 248
  - Unit 4: p. 279, p. 288, p. 294, p. 302
- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  - Unit 3: p. 230
  - Unit 4: p. 266, p. 294
- Consider using the Technology Extensions:
  - Unit 3: p. 245
  - Unit 4: p. 283
Grade 1

Instructional Guidance

There are four lessons per week in Being a Writer grade 1, with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 3: Telling More (4 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Learn prompts to support the writing community in telling more
  - Rereading and adding to stories
  - Visualizing and writing about topics of choice
  - Approximating spelling and using the word wall
  - Capitalizing proper nouns

- Considerations:
  - This unit is first grade students’ introduction to revision.
  - This unit should be taught as intended for the full four weeks.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.
  - The Technology Extension (p. 264) can be an ongoing project for fully remote learners.

Unit 4: Writing Stories About Me (4 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Exploring beginning, middle, and end
  - Telling and writing personal stories
  - Rereading to add to the beginning, middle, and end
  - Exploring feelings and adding feelings words to stories
  - Choosing stories for publication
  - Capitalizing proper nouns, using exclamation points
  - Proofreading for spelling and punctuation

- Considerations:
  - This is the students’ first experience in formal publication. Consider modifications needed for remote learners. See the Technology Extension on p. 337 for support.
  - The second week in this unit uses “Feelings” cards. Consider how to modify for remote learners.
At-Home Activities

- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extensions:
  - Unit 3: p. 218, p. 229, p. 236
  - Unit 4: p. 280, p. 284, p. 299, p. 324, p. 345
- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  - Unit 3: p. 243, p. 259
  - Unit 4: p. 284, p. 324
- Consider using the Technology Extensions:
  - Unit 3: p. 253, p. 264
  - Unit 4: p. 284, p. 337
Grade 2

Instructional Guidance

There are four lessons per week in Being a Writer grade 2 with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 3: Fiction (4 weeks)

- Essential Learning:
  - Writing about characters that are unique and interesting
  - Adding and punctuating dialogue
  - Using question marks and exclamation points
  - Making up an ending
  - Approximating the spelling of polysyllabic words
  - Selecting a draft for publication
  - Revising for descriptive words
  - Proofreading for spelling, ending punctuation, capitalization of proper nouns

- Considerations:
  - This unit is second graders’ first time to publish their work. If you’re teaching remotely, use the Technology Extension on p. 264 for support.
  - The Technology Extension on p. 255 may be considered as an ongoing project for remote learners.
  - The Extension on p. 277 introduces the students to the Student Self-Assessment. Consider using this for all learners to reflect on their published pieces.

Unit 4: Nonfiction (5 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Writing facts and questions
  - Using temporal words
  - Writing opening and closing sentences
  - Adding to and finishing drafts
  - Giving feedback
  - Proofreading for spelling, punctuation, and capitalization
Considerations:
- Pair conferring in the fourth and fifth weeks of this unit can be facilitated as an in-person lesson in a blended format or through the use of “breakout” rooms on your learning platform in a fully remote format.
- Consider using the Technology Extension on p. 376 to support publication for remote learners.

At-Home Activities
- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from the daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extensions:
- Consider using the Writing about Reading Activities:
  - Unit 3: p. 222, p. 244
  - Unit 4: p. 297, p. 349
- Consider using the Technology Extensions:
  - Unit 3: p. 255, p. 264
Grades 3–6

Instructional Considerations

There are five lessons per week in Being a Writer grades 3–6. The immersion and drafting weeks of the units lend themselves well to live instruction via a remote platform or as a recorded lesson. The revision, proofreading, and publication sections of the units are best taught in a live format (in person or via remote platform). Independent writing is a daily part of the lesson and can be done at any time. You may consider recording the “Getting Ready to Write” section of each lesson, allowing students independent writing time via a shared platform (such as Google Docs) for interaction with each other, and establishing time for sharing and reflecting via a live platform.

When a blended or fully remote format is necessary, consider teaching the units in the following order:

- Unit 1: The Writing Community (beginning of the year)
- Unit 2: The Writing Process (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative Writing Performance Task (beginning of the year)
- Opinion Writing (middle of the year)
- Opinion Narrative Writing Performance Task (middle of the year)
- Functional Writing (middle of the year)
- Expository Nonfiction (middle/end of the year)
- Expository Narrative Writing Performance Task (end of the year)
- Poetry (if time allows)
- Fiction (if time allows)
- Unit 9: Revisiting the Writing Community

Note that this Guidance follows the order of units as presented in the manuals. If you are following the alternate order above, you will need to review both the Middle-of-the-Year and the End-of-the-Year sections to find guidance on all the appropriate units.

Fiction (6 weeks; 5 weeks in Grade 6)

- Essential content:
  - Drafting fiction in realistic or imaginary situations
  - Visualizing and describing characters
  - Developing plot and setting
Conventions include: temporal words and phrases; verbs and adverbs; punctuating speech; correcting run-on sentences; punctuating for effect; and first- and third-person points of view

• Considerations:
  - The immersion and drafting weeks (first three weeks of the unit) could be modified to include fewer Quick Write experiences if necessary.
  - The revision, proofreading, and publication weeks of the unit can be recorded. Individual conferences can support students in taking their writing to final publication.
  - Consider using the Technology Extensions referring to publishing student writing online to support remote learners.

Expository Nonfiction (6 weeks)

• Essential content:
  - Listening to and discussing expository nonfiction texts
  - Selecting a topic to research:
    • Grade 3: An animal
    • Grade 4: A country
    • Grades 5 and 6: Any topic
  - Researching and taking notes
  - Organizing notes
  - Drafting and publishing an expository nonfiction piece
  - Conventions: transitional words and phrases; spelling; punctuation; run-on sentences and sentence fragments; paragraphing; creating bibliographies

• Considerations:
  - This unit culminates with a research report. Students will need ample time for all three sections of the unit.
  - The revision, proofreading, and publication weeks of the unit can be recorded. Individual conferences can support students in taking their writing to final publication.
  - Consider using the Technology Extensions referring to publishing student writing online to support remote learners.

Expository Nonfiction Writing Performance Task (1 week)

• Essential content:
  - Applying students’ learning from the Expository Nonfiction unit to a writing performance task that integrates reading and writing
• Considerations:
  − This unit lends itself to recorded lessons.
    • For fully remote models, consider providing students with the recorded lessons and continuing individual conferences throughout the week of instruction.
    • For blended models, consider Days 1, 2, and 4 for in-person learning and Days 3 and 5 for recorded lessons.

At-Home Activities

• Consider using the Writing Time portion of the daily lessons.

• Consider using the Extensions for independent work:
  − Grade 3:
  − Grade 4:
  − Grade 5:
  − Grade 6:

• Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  − Grade 3:

  - Grade 6:
    - Expository nonfiction: p. 477, p. 529, p. 547
End of the Year

In this section, we offer guidance for the end of the school year (approximately weeks 21–30). For the end of the year, Being a Writer instructional guidance and at-home activities are provided to support fully or blended remote learning. The guidance is organized by grade level.

Kindergarten

Grade 1

Grade 2

Grades 3–5

Grade 6

Kindergarten

Instructional Guidance

There are three Being a Writer lessons per week in Kindergarten with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 5: Exploring Words Through Poetry (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Visualizing poems
  - Exploring descriptive phrases, movements, color, and interesting words
  - Sharing favorite words
  - Contributing to a shared poem
  - Writing poems about animals and foods

- Considerations:
  - As this unit is an exploration of the use of words in poetry, there are no additional conventions taught in this unit.
  - Due to the short duration of this unit it should be taught in its entirety.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.
Unit 6: Opinion Writing (2 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Learning what an opinion is
  - Generating opinions and writing opinion pieces that have reasons to support their thinking

- Considerations:
  - Due to the short duration of this unit, it should be taught in its entirety.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.

Unit 7: Revisiting the Writing Community (1 week)

- Essential content:
  - Discussing, reflecting on, and writing about the writing community this year
  - Creating a list of summer writing ideas

- Consideration:
  - This is the culminating week for the school year. Complete during the final three weeks of the year.

At-Home Activities

- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.

- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

- Consider using the Extensions:
  - Unit 5: p. 316, p. 319
  - Unit 6: p. 379, p. 389
  - Unit 7: p. 407, p. 410

- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  - Unit 5: p. 336
  - Unit 6: p. 394

- Consider using the Technology Extensions:
  - Unit 5: p. 323, p. 331
  - Unit 6: p. 390
  - Unit 7: p. 407
Grade 1

Instructional Guidance

There are four lessons per week in Being a Writer grade 1 with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 5: Writing Nonfiction (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Generating and writing facts about various topics
  - Exploring the use of question marks
  - Writing opening and closing sentences
  - Rereading and telling more
  - Proofreading for spelling and punctuation

- Considerations:
  - This is students’ first unit focused on nonfiction writing. The unit should be completed in its entirety.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.

Unit 6: Exploring Words Through Poetry (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Visualizing poems
  - Exploring descriptive and sound words
  - Exploring figurative language
  - Generating similes
  - Contributing to a shared poem
  - Writing poems about recess, the weather, and classroom objects

- Considerations:
  - As this unit is an exploration of the use of words in poetry, there are no additional conventions taught in this unit.
  - Due to the short duration of this unit it should be taught in its entirety.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.
Unit 7: Opinion Writing (2 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Learning what an opinion is
  - Generating opinions and writing opinion pieces that have reasons to support their thinking
  - Exploring closing sentences
  - Proofreading for punctuation and spelling

- Considerations:
  - Due to the short duration of this unit, it should be taught in its entirety.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.

Unit 8: Revisiting the Writing Community (1 week)

- Essential content:
  - Discussing, reflecting on, and writing about the writing community this year
  - Creating a list of summer writing ideas

- Considerations:
  - This is the culminating week for the school year. Complete during the final three weeks of the year.

At-Home Activities

- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extensions:
  - Unit 5: p. 359, p. 363, p. 367
  - Unit 7: p. 505, p. 531
  - Unit 8: p. 546, p. 549

- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  - Unit 5: p. 393
  - Unit 6: p. 478
  - Unit 7: p. 519
• Consider using the Technology Extensions:
  - Unit 5: p. 378, p. 393
  - Unit 6: p. 476
  - Unit 7: p. 531
  - Unit 8: p. 542
Grade 2

Instructional Guidance

There are four lessons per week in Being a Writer grade 2 with optional Writing Throughout the Week Activities.

Unit 5: Letter Writing (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Writing friendly letters
  - Identifying parts of a friendly letter
  - Addressing envelopes
  - Punctuating dates, greetings, and closings
  - Proofreading for punctuation and capitalization

- Considerations:
  - This is students’ first and only unit focused on letter writing. The unit should be completed in its entirety.
  - Many of the Technology Extensions in this unit lend themselves to remote learning.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.

Unit 6: Poems and Words (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Listing descriptive, sound, and movement words
  - Exploring figurative language
  - Writing a shared poem
  - Writing poems about summer, food, animals, and rain
  - Revising and proofreading poems for publication

- Considerations:
  - Due to the short duration of this unit it should be taught in its entirety.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.
- Using linking words to connect reasons for opinions
- Exploring closing sentences that restate opinions
- Proofreading for punctuation, capitalization, and spelling

- Considerations:
  - This is an essential unit for second graders. Due to the short duration of this unit, it should be taught in its entirety.
  - Continue to confer with writers weekly.

Unit 8: Revisiting the Writing Community (1 week)

- Essential content:
  - Discussing, reflecting on, and writing about the writing community this year
  - Creating a list of summer writing ideas

- Consideration:
  - This is the culminating week for the school year. Complete during the final three weeks of the year.

At-Home Activities

- Consider using the free writing/drawing opportunities from daily lessons.
- Consider using the Writing Throughout the Week Activities.
- Consider using the Extensions:
  - Unit 5: p. 406, p. 434
  - Unit 7: p. 534, p. 538, p. 550, p. 559, p. 580, p. 583
  - Unit 8: p. 599, p. 603

- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  - Unit 5: p. 395, p. 422
  - Unit 6: p. 448, p. 476
  - Unit 7: p. 524, p. 528

- Consider using the Technology Extensions:
  - Unit 5: p. 406, p. 419
  - Unit 6: p. 507
  - Unit 7: p. 555, p. 580
  - Unit 8: p. 596
Grades 3–5

Instructional Considerations

There are five lessons per week in Being a Writer grades 3–5. The immersion and drafting weeks of the units lend themselves well to live instruction via a remote platform or as a recorded lesson. The revision, proofreading, and publication sections of the units are best taught in a live format (in person or via remote platform). Independent writing is a daily part of the lesson and can be done at any time. You may consider recording the “Getting Ready to Write” section of each lesson, allowing students independent writing time via a shared platform (such as Google Docs) for interaction with each other, and establishing time for sharing and reflecting via a live platform.

When a blended or full remote format is necessary, consider teaching the units in the following order:

- Unit 1: The Writing Community (beginning of the year)
- Unit 2: The Writing Process (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative Writing Performance Task (beginning of the year)
- Opinion Writing (middle of the year)
- Opinion Narrative Writing Performance Task (middle of the year)
- Functional Writing (middle of the year)
- Expository Nonfiction (middle/end of the year)
- Expository Narrative Writing Performance Task (end of the year)
- Poetry (if time allows)
- Fiction (if time allows)
- Unit 9: Revisiting the Writing Community

Note that this Guidance follows the order of units as presented in the manuals. If you are following the alternate order above, you will need to review both the Middle-of-the-Year and the End-of-the-Year sections to find guidance on all the appropriate units.

Functional Writing (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Identifying types of functional writing
  - Comparing sets of directions
  - Drafting and revising to ensure accuracy, clarity, and completeness
- Conventions include: using conjunctions (and, but, and or); using modal auxiliaries (can, may, and must); correlating conjunctions (either/or and both/and); commas in a series; and proofreading for spelling, punctuation, and grammar

- Considerations:
  - If you made modifications in Making Meaning to eliminate weeks of instruction with functional writing, this unit is of the utmost importance to complete as intended.
  - Many of the Extensions in this unit may need to be modified for remote instruction.

Opinion Writing (3 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Writing opinions and supporting reasons
  - Understanding purpose and audience
  - Crafting clear, direct openings and clear statements of opinion
  - Conventions include: recognizing and correcting sentence fragments and run-on sentences; using adjectives; using transitional words; using a comma after introductory words, phrases, and clauses

- Considerations:
  - Due to the short duration, this unit should be completed in its entirety.
  - Consider using the Technology Extensions referring to publishing student writing online to support remote learners.

Opinion Writing Performance Task (1 week)

- Essential content:
  - Applying their learning from the Opinion unit to a writing performance task that integrates reading and writing

- Consideration:
  - This unit lends itself to recorded lessons. For fully remote scenarios, consider providing students with the recorded lessons and continuing individual conferences throughout the week of instruction. For blended models, consider Days 1, 2, and 4 for in-person learning and Days 3 and 5 for recorded lessons.

Poetry (2 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Exploring sensory details, alliteration, repetition, and sound
  - Writing poems about food, animals, things that make noise, weather, objects
  - Revising and proofreading poems for publication
Remote Learning Guidance for Being a Writer: End of the Year

- Making decisions about punctuation
- Exploring image, sound, and form
- Intentionally breaking convention rules

° Considerations:
- Due to the short duration of this unit, it should be taught in its entirety.
- All texts in this unit are available as PDFs.
- Continue to confer with writers weekly.

Revisiting the Writing Community (1 week)

° Essential content:
  - Reflecting on their growth as a writer
  - Reflecting on growth as a writing community and thanking classmates
  - Planning summer writing

° Consideration:
  - This final unit should be completed during the last three weeks of the school year.

At-Home Activities

° Consider using the Writing Time portion of the daily lesson.

° Consider using the Extensions for independent work:
  - Grade 3:
    • Functional Writing: p. 483, p. 494, p. 497, p. 539
    • Opinion: p. 564, p. 612
    • Poetry: p. 637, p. 642, p. 674
  - Grade 4:
    • Opinion: p. 557, p. 607
    • Poetry: p. 632, p. 636, p. 662
  - Grade 5:
    • Functional Writing: p. 490, p. 497, p. 534
    • Opinion: p. 565, p. 614
Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:

- Grade 3:
  - Functional Writing: p. 535
  - Opinion: p. 604
  - Poetry: p. 667

- Grade 4:
  - Functional Writing: p. 528
  - Opinion: p. 599
  - Poetry: p. 655

- Grade 5:
  - Functional Writing: p. 537
  - Opinion: p. 606
  - Poetry: p. 667

Consider using the Technology Extensions:

- Grade 3:
  - Functional Writing: p. 497
  - Opinion: p. 583, p. 609, p. 613
  - Poetry: p. 674
  - Unit 9: p. 690

- Grade 4:
  - Functional Writing: p. 476
  - Poetry: p. 662
  - Unit 9: p. 678

- Grade 5:
  - Functional Writing: p. 505
  - Opinion: p. 584, p. 611, p. 615
  - Poetry: p. 674
  - Unit 9: p. 690
Grade 6

Instructional Considerations

There are five lessons per week in Being a Writer grade 6. The immersion and drafting weeks of the units lend themselves well to live instruction via a remote platform or as a recorded lesson. The revision, proofreading, and publication sections of the units are best taught in a live format (in person or via remote platform). Independent writing is a daily part of the lesson and can be done at any time. You may consider recording the “Getting Ready to Write” section of each lesson, allowing students independent writing time via a shared platform (such as Google Docs) for interaction with each other, and establishing time for sharing and reflecting via a live platform.

When a blended or full remote format is necessary consider the following order for the units:

- Unit 1: The Writing Community (beginning of the year)
- Unit 2: The Writing Process (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative (beginning of the year)
- Personal Narrative Writing Performance Task (beginning of the year)
- Opinion Writing (middle of the year)
- Opinion Narrative Writing Performance Task (middle of the year)
- Functional Writing (middle of the year)
- Expository Nonfiction (middle/end of the year)
- Expository Narrative Writing Performance Task (end of the year)
- Poetry (if time allows)
- Fiction (if time allows)
- Unit 9: Revisiting the Writing Community

Note that this Guidance follows the order of units as presented in the manuals. If you are following the alternate order above, you will need to review both the Middle-of-the-Year and the End-of-the-Year sections to find guidance on all the appropriate units.

Functional Writing (2 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Identifying types of functional writing
  - Exploring audience and purpose
  - Drafting and revising to ensure accuracy, clarity, and completeness
  - Drafting labeled diagrams
Conventions include: exploring transitional words and phrases; specific language and details; proofreading for spelling, punctuation, and grammar

Consideration:
- If modifications were made in Making Meaning to eliminate weeks of instruction with functional writing, this unit is of the utmost importance to complete as intended.

Argumentative Writing (5 weeks)

Essential content:
- Comparing persuasive and argumentative writing
- Examining claims and counterclaims
- Generating questions and reviewing sources of information
- Taking notes, evaluating credibility of sources, avoiding plagiarism
- Drafting introductions that state a claim and capture the reader’s attention
- Drafting supporting paragraphs with reasons and evidence
- Addressing a counterclaim
- Conventions: using transitional words and phrases; correcting run-on sentences and sentence fragments; creating a bibliography; proofreading for spelling, punctuation, and grammar

Considerations:
- This unit culminates with a research-based argumentative essay.
- All texts in this unit are available as PDFs.
- The revision, proofreading, and publication weeks of the unit can be recorded. Individual conferences can support students in taking their writing to final publication.
- Consider using the Technology Extensions referring to publishing student writing online to support remote learners.

Argumentative Writing Performance Task (1 week)

Essential content:
- Applying their learning from the Expository Nonfiction unit to a writing performance task that integrates reading and writing

Consideration:
- This unit lends itself to recorded lessons.
  - For fully remote models, consider providing students with the recorded lessons and continuing individual conferences throughout the week of instruction.
• For blended models, consider Days 1, 2, and 4 for in-person learning and Days 3 and 5 for recorded lessons.

Poetry (2 weeks)

- Essential content:
  - Exploring rhyming patterns and metaphors
  - Writing poems about seasons, objects, animals, things that make noise
  - Revising and proofreading poems for publication
  - Exploring sensory details, onomatopoeia, repetition of words and sounds, metaphor, repetition, and form
  - Intentionally breaking capitalization and punctuation rules

- Considerations:
  - Due to the short duration of this unit it should be taught in its entirety.
  - All texts in this unit are available as PDFs.

Revisiting the Writing Community (1 week)

- Essential content:
  - Reflecting on their growth as a writer
  - Reflecting on growth as a writing community and thanking classmates
  - Planning summer writing

- Consideration:
  - This final unit should be completed during the last three weeks of the school year.

---

At-Home Activities

- Consider using the Writing Time portion of the daily lessons.

- Consider using the Extensions:
  - Functional Writing: p. 579, p. 606, p. 620
  - Argumentative Writing: p. 641, p. 663, p. 698, p. 790

- Consider using the Writing About Reading Activities:
  - Functional Writing: p. 620
  - Argumentative Writing: p. 706, p. 776
  - Poetry: p. 849
• Consider using the Technology Extensions:
  − Functional Writing: p. 606
  − Argumentative Writing: p. 703, p. 763, p. 772, p. 790
  − Poetry: p. 850, p. 854
